GERMAN OFFENSIVE Kaiser's Whole Force on the Bapaume Line Now Engaged in Battle.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The stubborn battle on the twelve-mile front south of Bapaume, from Thiepval to the Bethune road, is unabated. The Germans, whose positions all the way to the Ancre and along the high roads to Bapaume are threatened, have thrown all their strength into repeated counter-attacks. But the Kaiser's troops have not given ground, and in some sectors have pushed forward for small gains. But in the German counter-battle is again, their attack is not likely to resume the attack on a large scale. Small thrusts today will be succeeded soon, it is believed, by larger ones.

Fighting, comparing in ferocity with that at High Wood, continues around Thiepval. North of Courcellette, the British advanced, but the German counter-attack won back part of this ground, in the British trench. From Eaucourt l'Abbaye, as far west as Thiepval, the Germans are continuing bitterly the efforts of the center of the British army to push forward. But despite these heavy counter-attacks, Haig has succeeded in establishing his line.

Unfavorable weather conditions are holding up operations, especially for the French, who must now leave the steady and consistent thrust which threw the enemy off his balance and yield large gains.

chairs for the next Vice-President of the United States.

THE ADDRESS.

Following is Mr. Fairbanks' speech in part:

"I am glad to find as I go up and down the country that our party, almost to a man, has buried the differences of four years ago beyond the reach of any resurrection. Why? Because there are great questions to be solved and they can only be solved in the fullest and best degree by all that believe in the soundness of Republican policies in standing together in a common cause."

"Mr. Wilson came into power representing the minority sentiment of the American people. He did not hold them, and he does not hold now, a commission from the majority of the American people to promulgate and enforce any policies in our national government."

"He claimed when he came into authority in Washington that the American people demanded a revision of the tariff. He was pledged to various political governmental policies. The platform on which he was elected provided for one term for the Chief Executive of the United States. [Laughter.] I have not heard him expatiate very extensively upon that point."

HAS BROKEN FAITH.

"I like a political party to keep faith. It is a good rule in this world that when a man pledges his word as a man, he should keep it. It is a good rule for a political party to keep its word to the American people. It is a good rule for it to stand by its pledged faith."

"However, this question of one term for the President is unimportant. If the Democrats want to break their faith, it is not my affair; it is a matter the American people can settle. And I am inclined to think, as I meet my countrymen from Maine to California, that although the Democratic party has turned its back upon that one pledge, made for the purpose of obtaining power four years ago, I think that on November 7, the American people will compel it to keep faith and will retire it at the end of four years. [Applause.]

"Our Democratic friends, in the platform adopted at Baltimore, made a pledge to reduce the high cost of living. [Laughter.] That was one of the party's specific promises and it is not one to be lightly passed by. They made it. Have they kept it? No. They have not kept it. Why not? Clothed with complete power in the executive and legislative branches of the national government, and having failed to keep that pledge, what right have they now to appeal to the judgment of America for approval?"

THE TARIFF.

"One thing about which I very strongly complain of our Democratic friends is their wanton overthrow of the protective policy of William McKinley and the Republican party. [Applause.] They have made a business-like way. Mr. Wilson convened Congress in special session and they went merely about tearing down the great Wilson tariff, and they have done it in a way that is a disgrace to the industrial development of America."

"They particularly disregarded the welfare of the State of California, her industries and her great resources and opened them up in the main to invasion from the four quarters of the world. In all portions of our country the overthrow of the Republican tariff law and the substitution of the Underwood law created confusion and disaster. Thousands and millions of our countrymen were thrown out of their employment."

"The condition became so acute that before the war—that charitable societies were engaged actively in undertaking to provide for the needs of charity. Bread lines were formed in our great cities and the government, through one of its departments, undertook to organize for the distribution of unemployed labor throughout the country."

THE IRONY OF IT.

"There seems to be something of irony in that fact. They broke down the best employment agency in America, that is the Republican tariff system, and they tried to meet the needs of the consequent distress by undertaking to have a board of places for the unemployed when everywhere the new law had done its vicious work, for the adoption of the Democratic tariff law turned men and women out of work in California and all the States."

"As a factory closer the Democratic tariff was the most successful organization in the history of the Republic. The present hectic prosperity of certain industries is based upon war orders. Our Democratic friends point with pride to that Democratic prosperity. But that prosperity is not due to Democratic policies; it exists in spite of them. How many human lives has it taken in Europe to make Democratic prosperity in America? I would rather point to the trophies of Republican policies in the way of peace than to Democratic prosperity which is the fruit of war."

"When the war ends the great trainloads of munitions will stop; the great factories where millions of wage-earners are now working on war orders will need something else to do. At that time will come a recurrence of the conflict between the wage-earners of America and the Exponent of Republican Principles.

Hon. Charles Warren Fairbanks, Candidate for Vice-President of the United States, as he appeared delivering his notable address here last evening.

WAGE-EARNERS OF EUROPEAN COUNTRIES—the contest for industrial existence will be intensified between the wage-earners of this and other countries.

SAFEGUARDS NEEDED.

"What does prudence suggest to the wise men and women of America? It is that they should put up safeguards around the United States and if foreign producers want to get into our markets they must make a deposit as evidence of good faith at the customhouses of the Republic. [Applause.] I do not think they should crowd the products of California or of any other State."

"This is a practical question. We must make up our minds in the next five weeks what we are going to do about it."

"Now as to Mexico. Mexico is a dark and dismal story. No man can contemplate it with any sense of gratification or pride. No one has spoken with more kindness of Mr. Wilson than I have. Five months after he came into power in Washington I spoke in behalf of giving him fair play, and the Democratic press from one end of the country to the other has published my address. I found it in the advertising columns down in New England and I find it in the advertising columns here. I said—and I said it with a sense of my responsibility—that when we come to dealing with questions with foreign powers it is our duty to stand by the President. Under our constitutional system we have but one spokesman when we come to deal with foreign powers and that is the President, and loyalty to our institutions compels us to follow where he leads. [Applause.]

SOME INFIRMITY.

"But we have come now to a point where the question is not whether Mr. Wilson and the electorate of the United States. You know it is claimed by our Democratic friends that he has kept us out of war. [Laughter and applause.] There is a little infirmity in that utterance because, as a matter of fact, he has not kept us out of war. War was made by him in Mexico. You remember the incident at Vera Cruz. I am not going into it."

"They talk about not making war. A few months ago we brought back from the sands of Mexico the bodies of American soldiers wearing the uniform of the Republic, shot to death upon foreign soil. No war! Now, my friends, while I have said this about Mr. Wilson I still stand by him for he is the President of my Republic; no one else can act for the Republic except the President and I will uphold him until he lays down his commission on the 4th of next March at Washington. [Applause.]

"That I conceive to be the part of patriotism. [Renewed applause.] But as to Mexico, I know someone who can deal with the Mexican situation bravely, frankly and understandingly, and that is Charles Evans Hughes, our candidate for President. [Prolonged applause.]

VITAL QUESTIONS.

"Men and women of California, think over these questions. The past has gone and all record of it is of no use to the future. We know there are vital questions opening and they must be settled well or for four years we shall be at about again upon the sea of uncertainty. The wage-earners are interested indeed; the property-owners, workingmen, capitalists, the farmers and the miners, all are interested in a sober, rational settlement of these questions for they will govern us for four years to come and possibly affect our destiny beyond that."

"Now, my friends, will California do her part?"

A Voice: "You bet!"

Mr. Fairbanks: "Of course she will. And when our friends come to appeal for support for Mr. Wilson it will not be sufficient for them to say 'he kept us out of war.' That is an insufficient answer. The great question before us, that looms mountains high, is, Does he stand for policies which will keep the American people? On the 15th of November let it ring through America that California stands by the other States in the Union to stand with power the great, wise, able and patriotic American, Charles Evans Hughes. With three lusty cheers for Mr. Fairbanks and three more for Hughes the meeting adjourned."

BOWLING TOO NOISY.

The athletic young men of San Dimas who bowled on the San Dimas alleys will learn through the action of the Board of Supervisors yesterday that they had all the fun, while others got the noise of their sport. In short, the alley will not be relinquished. The quietness put on the game by Alice Monroe and other women, who wrote the board that they found the reverberation painful.

Missions.
LOOP ROUTE A SCENIC MAGNET.

To Improve Temecula-Pala-Bonsall Road.

Will Attract Tourists for Panoramic Beauty.

Business Men Inaugurate Worthy Campaign.

At a meeting held at the Alexandria yesterday it was decided to inaugurate a campaign for the improvement of the Temecula-Pala-Bonsall road, which when completed will afford one of the finest scenic loop routes in the United States. This movement is being pushed by Vernon Goodwin, vice-president and managing director of the Alexandria Hotel, John J. Herman, manager of the Hotel del Coronado, Walter Raymond of the Hotel Raymond, Frank Miller, of the Mission Inn at Riverside, and many leading business and hotel men of Southern California.

In presenting the possibilities in the construction of this comparatively small piece of road, Mr. Herman said: "It is the plan to make a mission road, not merely in name. We propose to conduct a campaign to popularize its use in connection with the coast highway. The peculiar advantage this route possesses over any other place of road in the United States is that the tourists, while traversing this loop, will find a variety of scenery, mountains, sea scope and pastoral that is ideal and that can be found nowhere else on this continent. He will be able to visit the old missions, institutions that sink deep into the roots of our national history. The trip can be made in two days or two weeks, just as fancy dictates, and he is assured of finding, at the end of each day, hotel accommodations suited to his requirements, whether he be a man of millions or of moderate means. The plan contemplates a loop route enabling the auto tourist to leave Los Angeles by the coast highway and return by way of the inland route, or vice versa, over safe and sane, modern paved roads.

"The entire expenditure will not entail the building of more than forty miles of road. The returns in dollars and cents, which will certainly come as a result of this expenditure, will be large in comparison to the investment. The single fact alone, that it will be possible for a tourist to leave Los Angeles on Monday morning, via the coast highway, and return by Saturday night paying a visit to every mission in Southern California, besides enjoying one of the most beautiful panoramas this continent affords, will be a great magnet for the thousands of tourists, who are every day coming to California in their automobiles."

The men who are behind this project have engaged Harold A. Taylor, view photographer, and Blaine Phillips, a newspaper man, to cover the route and prepare literature that will do justice to the scenic wonders and historic associations inseparably connected with this region.

The movement has the unqualified endorsement of the Automobile Club of Southern California, and practically every other civic and commercial organization in the southern part of the State. It will, when its object is accomplished, put the finishing touches on the great highway system of Southern California. With the completion of these few short strips of road, it will be possible to make an automobile trip through the southern part of the State, visiting every point of interest, historical and otherwise, that can possibly appeal to the imagination of the most exacting tourist in search of recreation, information and amusement.

When Mr. Musgrove related this evidence to Mrs. Jordan, she, while not wishing to appear vindictive or desirous of revenge, decided that the matter should be thoroughly investigated. Mr. Musgrove stated yesterday he has discovered two witnesses who had remained silent because of the publicity it might have brought upon them. Other witnesses were also found. All these witnesses corroborated in every detail the story told by Mr. Parsons and described the machine.

Byrnes, ex-Member of the Rial Gang, Sues Nursery for Damages.

J. W. (Nigger) Byrnes, who with Lee Rial and others took more than $100,000 away from eastern tourists two years ago by means of the race-track swindle, and who was placed on probation for his share of the artistic feeding, filed a suit yesterday through Frank Dominguez and Harry Dehm, his attorneys, in which he declares he was stung in the purchase of nursery stock.

Byrnes alleges that he agreed to pay $600 for a consignment of orange trees from a local nursery and that the stock was guaranteed of the best. He says that after two years of hard, grueling and fruitless (in every sense) labor, watering, cultivating and harvesting these trees he discovered they were not as represented. The trees are stunted, crooked and gnarled, with the roots balled instead of going down into the soil and performing the duty assigned them by nature, he said.

NATIONAL RULE FOR IMPERIAL.
Resolution Found for Control of Irrigating System.
Magnitude of the Expenditure Leads to Idea.
Governmental Supervision to Decrease the Cost.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—What is being done by many of the most progressive movements to obtain adequate and permanent water supply for the Imperial Valley at a decrease in cost for irrigating valley lands was launched by the County Farm Bureau here today. A resolution was unanimously adopted favoring such action as will make the fundamental question of national irrigation and protective systems national and most effective means of obtaining the desired results.

The County Board of Supervisors adopted a similar resolution and the Imperial County Bankers' Association also expected to act favorably on the question at its next meeting. Some were telegraphed to Frank P. Lane and to President Benjamin Wheeler. The assistance of the university in the co-operative arrangement is sought as an impartial agency in case national legislation is enacted.

The action today was taken after the board had secured the counsel of Dr. Elwood Mead, formerly chief of irrigation, investigator for the United States Department of Agriculture and former chairman of the Colorado River Water Supply Commission, appointed by President Lane. With Dr. H. H. Mead, state leader of farm advisers, Dr. Mead came to the valley at the invitation of the farm bureau.

Discussion of the irrigation affairs of the valley was confined largely to the Imperial Valley. While the board was in session for an immediate investigation, it is concerned more particularly with a permanent policy. It is believed that the Imperial Valley would not conflict in any way with the consulting board of irrigation.

Dr. Mead was asked if he was prepared to speak for the government. He answered in the negative, but declared that the Imperial Valley would make the desired investigation, after which provision of Imperial Valley for government would be determined.

Dr. Mead suggested that it would be well to enter into contractual relations whereby the Reclamation bureau would build necessary works and deliver the water to the water organizations of the valley.

DR. ALBERT SHIELDS TALKS TO STUDENTS.
Presents Views Regarding Fitness of Things.

PASADENA, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—Dr. Albert Shields, the new Superintendent of Schools in Los Angeles, addressed the students of Throop College at their weekly assembly yesterday morning. He commended the fitness of things which looks down on the participation in the ordinary affairs of life. He continued:

"Among students we have the submissive, docile type. These students take courses of study in college because they are there. I am told that Throop College is an institution with a purpose and that students enroll here with a definite aim. In that they are fortunate, for many students go to college with nothing but an indefinite idea of the social advantages to be gained or because they think they would like to see a degree over their doorbell."

RUNS HIS AUTO INTO GROCERY.
Strange Adventure of a Waiter Employed in a Los Angeles Cafe.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—A waiter in a Los Angeles cafe, who was driving his car on Thursday evening on El Camino Real, near here, crashed into a grocery store owned by Fred H. Nye on the county road, and distributed the flour, canned goods, vegetables, molasses and vinegar unevenly about the street, tearing down the wall and driving the car almost over a counter. The machine turned over and all were pinned underneath. Aside from a few bruises no one was hurt. He was placed under $100 bond.

SKY SHOWERS FROGS AT BEACH.
Strange Phenomenon Causes Inquiries to be Made.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—East Seaside boulevard and that portion of the strand bordering on it is literally covered with small frogs which apparently came from the sky with today's storm. Thousands of them were gathered up today by workers from the health department, but the hoppers still cover the cement promenade and the beach front so that it is impossible to walk there without a great mortality among the intruders.

The frogs are of a variety unidentified by any person here, being brown, with white spots. Tonight their concert kept many residents awake. Others could not stay in their apartments because of the odor.

The visitation of frogs came with the casting up of tons of kelp. The strand being lined with the kelp. During last night a strong off-shore breeze loosened the marine growth and it is believed that by tomorrow morning the city will have its hands full in getting rid of the kelp. It has formerly been hauled to the kelp reduction plants, where it was sold, but it is now believed by Dr. Ralph L. Taylor, city health officer, that the weed must be buried.

More than ninety men have signed up for a Long Beach company of coast artillery under the Hay-Chamberlain bill. It is believed that within a few days the 125 members recruited to make up a company will have been secured, and the company mustered into the Federal service. Mustering day for the organization has been set for October 4, at the Co. H armory.

The following officers have been selected: J. W. McCown, captain; D. A. Deal, first lieutenant; and G. W. Isaacs, second lieutenant. It is estimated by the officers that the company will receive in salaries from the War Department $15,000 a year.

W. H. Bentley, an employee of a kelp reduction concern in the harbor district, was whirled around a shaft today for over a minute before fellow-workers saw that his clothing had become caught in belting. The machinery was stopped and Bentley, unconscious, was removed to a hospital. It was found that he suffered from cuts and bruises, but no broken bones, and will recover. His clothing was almost torn from his body. He remembers nothing of how the accident occurred.

MADE QUICK TRIP.
Schooner City of Portland Goes to the South Seas in Fifty-one Days and Finds That Fuel for the Return Trip is Obtainable.

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—The schooner City of Portland, the largest vessel ever built on this coast, arrived at Port Erie last Thursday. The voyage from the Columbia River to the South Seas was completed in fifty-one actual sailing days. The time from Honolulu to Port Erie was thirty-six days.

When the City of Portland left this coast it was understood that fuel for the trip would be obtained at Port Erie. The vessel is equipped with coal which was not obtained at Port Erie. Therefore, the schooner had to make a return trip at half speed only during the entire voyage and made an average of eight and a half knots. After arriving at Port Erie Capt. Johnson found that fuel could be purchased from the Standard Oil Company and the return trip will be under full speed.

Work will be started this week installing high pressure gas mains in the business section. The high pressure main on Harbor boulevard, which will bring the gas into the business section, was completed last week.

Over 1200 acres on the Dominguez estate will be released for agricultural purposes as the result of a contract let for draining Nigger Slough and other lakes on the big ranch. These lakes extend from the old aviation field nearly to Torrance and have been filled for several years. The water will be drained into the inner harbor.

VETERAN DIES AT OLD SOLDIERS' HOME.
SOLDIERS' HOME, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—The body of Henry D. Lasher, a former member of this branch, who died at his home in Saville on Thursday last week, was brought to this place for burial, and the funeral services today were largely attended. Besides a large number of personal friends and former comrades, there were present representatives of the I.O.O.F. and Union Veteran Legion, of which bodies he had been a member.

While a member of the Home Capt. Lasher filled a number of important offices, among which were commander of Home Company I, Chief of Police, adjutant, hospital steward and quartermaster-sergeant. Upon taking up residence with his family in Saville Lasher's well-known ability in clerical affairs won for him the office of City Clerk in that place.

While occupying the office of hospital steward in 1902 a demented patient crept quietly into his office one day and without warning assaulted Lasher with a veritable fusillade from a .38-caliber pistol. One shot penetrated his neck, and could never be located. In an engagement during the Civil War he sustained gunshot wounds in the left shoulder and in the right leg.

His service, as shown in the original record here, was in Co. G, One Hundred and Sixty-second New York Infantry, and he was admitted to the Home from Wilbur, Wash., in 1901, and was aged 70. He is survived by a widow, residing in Saville, and by three sons and two daughters residing elsewhere.

REDDONDO BEACH, Oct. 2.—(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.)—Arriving this week from Germany via New York, M. Broomey of this city declares that the consors of newspapers and letters have successfully kept from the world at large the true condition of the countries at war.

Mr. Broomey was the guest today of Mr. Mayer, proprietor of the Casino Cafe. He came across the Atlantic on the steamer Bjornford from Bergenport, Norway. At London all American mail, going and coming, is taken off for the consors who, he says, destroy letters and papers by the wholesale.

Featuring Luxurious New Furs

Never in the history of Fashion have there been so many beautiful combinations and novelties in Fur Sets and Fur Coats as the furriers are giving us this year.

Contrasts are the rule in the more pretentious pieces. The Sets comprise many Collarettes and Capelets, as well as the long straight Scarf. The Muffs also show great latitude—the Pillow, Melon and round Ball shapes all finding favor.

The prices are not so high as the wide demand would indicate. Neck pieces in Black Fox are priced from $15.00 to $25.00; in Black Lynx, from $10.00 to $35.00; in Seal Muskrat, from $8.50 to $27.50; in Beaver, from $12.50 to $22.50; in Mink, from $35.00 to $42.50; in Japanese Mink, $25.00 and $27.50; in Mole, from $8.50 to $67.50; in Red Fox, from $17.50 to $22.50. Most of these have Muffs to match, priced correspondingly, or the pieces may be bought separately. We are showing some handsome Capes and Collarettes of Beaver, Mole, Hudson Seal, and Skunk, priced from $16.50 to $67.50. Some of the smartest sets are of Cross Fox, Japanese Cross Fox and Silka Fox.
